

Acquiring Success

Success is acquired when we accept that success does not come from anything outside – it is exclusively an inside job.

Success is acquired when we affirm that success is our given right.

Success is acquired when we are firm in our integrity.

Success is acquired when we believe, without hesitation that our dreams can be fulfilled.

Success is acquired when we commit to whatever we decide to do.

Success is acquired when we constantly seek knowledge and information.

Success is acquired when we embrace every opportunity with gratitude.

Success is acquired when we evaluate past mistakes in order to create a better future.

Success is acquired when we face what we are good at and what we struggle with.

Success is acquired when we feel we should speak truth, or when we should hold our tongue.

Success is acquired when we follow what we know is right, without needing approval of such.

Success is acquired when we have uncomplaining steadiness.

Success is acquired when we honor another's opinion, when different from our own.

Success is acquired when we infuse interest, intellect, intuition and inspiration into our everyday life.

Success is acquired when we know that no one can make us feel 'less than' without our consent.

Success is acquired when we listen to the unspoken, as well as the spoken.

Success is acquired when we never blame another, as it gives them the power.

Success is acquired when we put our ideas and goals into action.

Success is acquired when we quell attachments and question illusions.

Success is acquired when we realize that the word courage is in the word discouraged.

Success is acquired when we respect time.

Success is acquired when we say goodbye to our wounds and welcome to our wisdom.

Success is acquired when we sense that our heart is happy and our soul is serene.

Success is acquired when we understand the power of energy and energetics.

Success is acquired when we view problems as an opportunity, not an obstacle.